TWO THOUSAND DEAD IN ONE WEEK

Further Reports About the Eruption of Mont Pelee—Gloom and Anxiety Prevail Confirmation of the Story of the Dense Clouds of Dust Ejected at Sea.

Berlin, September 5.—The report brought by the Royal Mail steamer Yare, which arrived here yesterday evening from Martinique of the loss of 2,000 lives through the recent outbreak of Mont Pelee referred to the deaths since Aug. 30 and not to the loss of life reported from the reported outbreak of Wednesday, Sept. 3.

The eruption of Mont Pelee on Sept. 3 was not remarkable, but there was a terrific explosion from the Soufriere, on the island of St. Vincent, Sept. 3.

The captain of the steamer Savannah, now here, confirming the report cabled to the Associated Press last night that she ran into.

DENSE CLOUDS OF DUST.

When 20 miles southwest of St. Vincent at 2 o'clock in the morning of Wednesday, adds that absolute darkness prevailed soon afterwards, and that he changed his course to due west in order to escape the ashes which were falling thick. The first officer could not see the captain two feet away and only knew him by his voice. They did not see the sun until about 10 a. m. the same day.

The steamer Yare further reports that several more valuable plantations were destroyed at the time of the recent outbreak and adds that the anxiety and dejection of the surviving population are general.

OUR CONSUL ALARMED.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—"I am seriously alarmed at the news of the renewed activity of the Martinique and St. Vincent volcanoes," said Louis H. Ayne, United States consul at Guadeloupe, who is in Chicago on sick leave.

"Should Mont Pelee blow its head off the loss of life consequent upon the production of a great tidal wave would be appalling. With pelee as a centre, a chain of islands extends westward, embracing a population of some 750,000.

"Almost without exception the cities and villages are situated along the coasts and but slightly elevated above the sea. A tidal wave 40 feet high would probably destroy a half million lives before it dashed against the shores of Puerto Rico with its million inhabitants.

A Book Contest.

The following from the August Ladies' Home Journal gives an interesting suggestion for a book contest. The end of every second line is left blank to be filled in with the title of a popular book as shown here:

The charming heroine, my friends, was known as—"Alice of Old Vincennes"

She lived when Indians were a power. And not—"When Knighthood was in Flower."

And in those past times, quaint and olden.

She fell in love with—"Eben Holden."

Then, while her friends began to marvel

A rival came, named—"Richard Carvel."

Fach rival his keen sword did draw, And heeded not—"The Reign of Law."

They slew each other, alas! and then She married a man named—"Crittenden."

The merry bells rang aloud in the steeple

And loudly cheered—"The Voice of the People."

The two rode away on a double bike And lived in—"Stringtown on the Pike."

They did not gossip with each neighbor.

But each one did—"The Portion of Labor."

Summer Complaint. is not always brought about by change of air and water. "The stay-at-homes" are just as susceptible to diarrhoea; due generally, to overeating, as unripe fruits etc.; and drinking ice water; all accompanied by painful bowel discharges, and if not checked, results seriously. Perry Davis' Painkiller is the only purely reliable remedy. 25 and 50c.

Which One Was Rich?

"If I were only as rich as he is!" muttered a poor boy that had just been given a piece of stale bread as he eyed a poorly dressed boy leaving a baker shop with a basket of whole, fresh loaves.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" sighed the boy with the basket, as he saw another boy passing on a bicycle with a large package strapped on his back.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" said the boy on the bicycle, as another boy rolled past in a pony cart.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" grumbled the boy in the pony cart, as he caught sight of a lad on the deck of a beautiful private yacht.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" this lucky fellow wished, cruising about in his father's yacht on foreign waters, as he spied one day a prince attended by a retinue of liveried servants.

"If I were as free as that boy is!" impatiently growled the young prince, thinking of the boy in the yacht.

"Wish I could have a good time like that boy on the bicycle!" longed the lame lad in the pony cart.

"How happy that boy with the basket looks!" said the boy on the bicycle.

"If I could relish my dinner as that boy does his crust!" said the baker's boy. "I'm sick for seeing so much bread."—Selected.

The Story of the Peaches

A father once gave each of his boys a peach. Afterwards he asked how they liked them.

"Fine," answered the first one; "they tasted so good, that I planted the seed. Perhaps a tree will grow from it, and we shall then have plenty of them."

"Good," answered the father, "you will sometime make an excellent gardener."

"I found mine so good," said the second boy, "that I asked mother for half of hers yet. The seed I threw away."

"Ah, you are still very young," said the father.

"I picked up the seed he threw away," said the third, "broke it open and ate it. My peach I sold for a penny."

At this the father shook his head and said: "You want to be a merchant. But there is no hurry. You need not begin so young."

"And now, my boy, what have you to say," turning to the fourth son, "how did yours taste?"

"I do not know," was the answer.

"Why! you do not know? Did you not eat yours?"

"No, I gave it to our sick neighbor. He did not want to take it, but I laid it upon the table and hurried away."

Tears filled the father's eyes, as he laid his hand upon him in blessing and said, "God will reward you."

Which of the four would you be—thrifty, thoughtless, close or charitable?—Tr.

Good Manners.

Never try to outshine, but to please.

Never press a favor where it seems undesired.

Never intrude ill-health, pains, losses or misfortunes.

Never talk or laugh aloud in public places or upon the street.

Never forget that vulgarity has its origin in ignorance or selfishness.

Never urge another to do anything against his desire unless you see danger before him.

Do not ask another to do what you would not be glad to do under similar circumstances.

Never omit to perform a kind act when it can be done with any reasonable amount of exertion.

Do not make victimisms at the expense of others which you would not wish to have made upon yourself.

Remember that good manners are thoughts filled with kindness and refinement and then translated into behavior.

Be not ostentatious in dress or deportment; nothing can be more vulgar. See that costumes fit the time and occasion.

Be rude to none; rudeness harms not even the humblest and poorest to whom it is directed, but it injures the exhibitors. Never treat superiors with servility or inferiors with arrogance. Speak as kindly to a lady laborer as to one occupying a high position.

Always give precedence to elders, visitors and superiors. Offer them the best seat at the table, the best place by the fire and the first of everything. Go further than mere form, and see that they are comfortable and happy.

Rules of Politeness.

1. To be polite is to have a kind regard for the feelings and rights of others.
2. Be as polite to your parents, brothers, sisters and schoolmates as you are to strangers.
3. Look people fairly in the eyes when you speak to them, or they speak to you.
4. Do not bluntly contradict any one.
5. It is not discourteous to refuse to do wrong.

Whispering, laughing, chewing gum, or eating at lectures, in school, or at places of amusement, is rude and vulgar.

Thorough.

Is it any wonder that the messenger boy who took such pains to make no mistakes should grow up to be one of the most successful of business men? It was Andrew Carnegie. Here is his own story of those days:

"My only dread was that I should some day be dismissed because I did not know the city; for it is necessary that a messenger boy should know all the firms and addresses of men who are in the habit of receiving telegrams. But I was a stranger in Pittsburgh. However, I made up my mind that I would learn to repeat successfully each business house in the principal streets, and was soon able to shut my eyes and begin at one side of Wood street and call every firm successively to the top; then pass to the other side and call every firm to the bottom. Before long I was able to do this with the business streets generally. My mind was then at rest upon that point."

Never intentionally wound the feelings of a human being.

How About Your Heart

Feel your pulse a few minutes. Is it regular? Are you short of breath, after slight exertion as going up stairs, sweeping, walking, etc? Do you have pain in left breast, side or between shoulder blades, choking sensations, fainting or smothering spells, inability to lie on left side? If you have any of these symptoms you certainly have a weak heart, and should immediately take

Dr. Heart Cure

Mr. F. H. Oaks of Jamestown, N. Y., whose genial face appears above, says: "Excessive use of liquor early affected my heart. I suffered severe pains about the heart, and in the left shoulder and side, while the palpitation would awaken me from sleep. I began taking Dr. Heart Cure and soon found permanent relief."

"They Say."

They say—ah! well, suppose they do, but can they prove this story true? Suspicious may arise from naught but malice, envy, want of thought; Why count yourself among the "they," Who whisper what they dare not say?

They say—but why the tale rehearse, And help to make the matter worse? No good can possibly accrue From telling what may be untrue; And is it not a nobler plan To speak of all the best you can?

They say—well, if it should be so, Why need you tell the tale of woe? Will it the bitter wrong redress, Or make one pang of sorrow less? Will it the erring one restore Henceforth to "go and sin no more?"

They say—oh! pause and look within: See how thy heart inclines to sin; Watch, lest in dark temptation's hour, Thou, too, shouldst sink beneath its power. Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall, But speak of good, or not at all.

—Lutheran World.

A Doubter Silenced.

"What shall I do? What shall I do?" It was the servant of a great scientist who asked the question of a fellow servant standing by. He had been engaged in the task of cleaning a silver cup of great value, and had allowed it to slip from his hands into a tub of aqua-fortis, once having reached which, it seemed to disappear entirely from view—in fact, to cease to have existence. As the two servants stood bemoaning the accident, the master of the house arrived on the scene, and learning the cause of their disturbance, assured them that though it had disappeared from view, and apparently no longer existed, yet he would bring it back again in all its old beauty.

"The kisses of a thousand roses Stolen from them while they sleep."

BEAUTIFUL ROSES

and beautiful women are gathered together yearly, and nature collects their delicate fragrance and reduces it to that essence of perfect perfume, "attar of roses" and "perfect children." An essential oil for the reduction of women's fragrance is

MOTHER'S FRIEND.

It is a liniment for external use on the breast and over the region of the generative organs. With its careful use throughout the period of lactation, woman's figure will remain perfect. The specially crushed and distilled buds of maternity will mature into the blooming rose again. The extract of this essence will be a perfect child blessed with the vigor, health, color and perfume of the mother rose. Its little rose face beside her, almost an exact reduction and counterpart of her own, will tell the blooming curves that are still her own.
